The Pennsylvania Legislature.

HARRISBURG, January 27. 1851.

Petitions were presented in the Senate for a bank at Kittanning; for a repeal of all laws exempting property from taxation; for free banking; for a repeal of the six hour law applicable to manufacturers. The usual report of the Mine Hill and Schuylkill Haven and Erie Canal company was reported from the committee. Bills were presented from the select committees to incorporate a bank at Tamagou, the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank at Warrington; relative to the election of cashiers and other bank officers; authorizing the issue of small notes; (a favorable report was made); and bills to regulate the manufacture and publish the colonial records of Pennsylvania, according to the recommendation of government. The report was ordered to be printed. A communication from the State Treasurer, concerning the amount due to the Commonwealth by various banks on the dividends, was then taken up and underived debate.

In the House petitions were presented praying the Legislature to pass resolutions instructing Senators in Congress to vote for a repeal of the Fugitive Law, &c., and against the repeal of the act to prevent kidnapping.

Horrific Murder and Suicide.

RUTHERFORD, January 27. 1851.

The most horrid case of murder and suicide that has ever occurred in this country, took place in the town of Paulding about eight miles from here between six and seven o'clock last evening. The circumstances, as we have received them, are nearly as follows.—A Mrs. Sharp was attending her sister, a Mrs. Campbell, who was ill at her residence, about two miles and a half from the house of Mr. Everett, the murderer. About half-past six last evening Miss S. went out of Campbell's house, and had been gone but two or three minutes before a note was heard which caused Campbell to run out after her. She was found dead on a scaffold ten feet over the door of a shop there on the ground, with her throat cut from ear to ear, in the agency of death, and near her lay Everett, who was his brother-in-law, in nearly the same situation, with a bloody knife in his hand. The knife was found in the pocket of the victim. The parties are remarkable. Everett was a man of good reputation and industrious habits, and leaves a wife and six children. The greatest excitement and consternation prevailed there last night. General Hull is gone to hold an inquest. Everett's cause is to be tried for his former giving them to the public bill after an investigation.
